ALL-OUT WAR ON JAPAN PLEDGED

LONDON, June 30.—Prime Minister Winston Churchill today announced the smashing of Adolf Hitler's U-boat warfare, demanded unconditional surrender of Germany, Italy and Japan and promised full diversion of all Britain's strength to the Far East when Axis tyranny in Europe has been broken for all time.

In a long dramatic speech at the Guildhall accepting freedom of the city of London, the prime minister pleaded for continued Anglo-American cooperation lest the whole world sink into "misery and confusion" and stoutly defended British empire precepts.

He promised that Hitlerite Germany would be scourged from stem to stern by Allied bombers and promised the full fury of war would rage in the Mediterranean by fall.

Highlights Of Address

His speech, following by only a few minutes a suggestion by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, in the house of commons that Italy capitulate "in the interest of humanity," stressed the following salient points:

1—More than thirty Nazi submarines were destroyed in the month of May, and June saw Atlantic convoys proceeding almost unattacked, while the U-boats "recoled to lick their wounds and mourn their dead."

2—Germany, Italy and Japan must surrender unconditionally and throw themselves on the mercy of the democracies so that Axis aggression never again

EDEN URGES ITALY QUIT WAR AT ONCE

LONDON, June 30.—British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden today urged Premier Mussolini to accept Allied terms of unconditional surrender to save his people from further unnecessary bombings.

Eden's bid to the harassed Italian premier to take his country out of the war was made in the House of Commons.

Harrisburg Girls, Trapped In Fire, Burned To Death

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, June 30.—Two young sisters were burned to death today when trapped on the third floor of their home.

The victims were Lillian Lau, 17, and Agnes Lau, 14. Rescued by firemen, they were pronounced dead when they reached a hospital.

Their mother, Mrs. Edward Lau, rescued her three-year-old son, Billy, and then returned to rouse four other children who were sleeping on the second floor. Flames cut off the approach to the two girls.

The fire was reported to have started when Mary Lau, 5, a twin, lit a match in attempting to find a dress in a closet. The father, Edward Lau, was enroute to work and returned to the scene just as firemen were bringing the charred bodies of his daughters to the street.

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, June 30.—Removal of Harold L. Ickes as fuel co-ordinator is a necessary prerequisite to relieving the East's current "bottleneck," in the opinion of President William J. Gottlieb of the Automobile club of New York.

In letters sent to all New York state lawmakers in Congress, Gottlieb said any reshuffling of the War Production Board by Director Donald M. Nelson would serve no good purpose while Ickes remains the final determining factor in allocating supplies for the area.

Fire Chief James E. Thomas reports that three fire companies were called to the Frank block at 112 West Washington street at 9:45 o'clock Tuesday evening when a fire broke out in a vacant apartment on the third floor, in which some clothes had been hung out to dry.

Firemen soon had the fire under control, damage being limited to around $300, although at first a bad fire looked imminent.

Vigorous Drive Planned By G.O.P.

Republican State Committee Lays Plans For Energetic Campaign

By JOHN PAGET

(I.N.S. Staff Correspondent)
HARRISBURG, June 30.—The Republican state committee today planned a vigorous four-month drive to return Judge Claude T. Reno, of Allentown, to the state superior court for a 10-year term and to launch a long-range campaign designed to place Pennsylvania in the 1944 G. O. P. presidential column.

Renzo was unanimously endorsed by the executive committee, according to State Chairman M. Harvey Taylor. If successful, the former attorney general's term will begin in January. He was named to the $18,000-a-year post on Dec. 17 by former Gov. Arthur H. James to succeed the late Judge Jesse E. B. Cunningham, of Philadelphia.

Taylor promised monthly meetings with G. O. P. leaders after the November 2 off-year election in an effort to keep party members "on their toes" for the presidential ballot.

Will Have Nucleus

"We feel if we fill the county courthouses as well as the borough and city offices with Republicans, we'll have a nucleus for next year's campaign," he explained.

"You can't start out next summer to lick a fellow who is entrenched with your money," he added. "You must start now." He said he referred to President Roosevelt and the federal payrolls that have mushroomed during the last 10 years of government centralization.

"Let's stop criticizing his satellites," Taylor declared. "Let's talk about Roosevelt who directs them."

The committee's decision of the national campaign, Taylor said, was confined to broad recommendations of policy although members decided not to criticize Roosevelt's foreign policy but dwelt upon "the administration's constant fumbling of domestic issues."

Taylor approved a statement by Roger W. Rowland, Lawrence county Republican chairman, that the Republican organization "could do more" for labor than the Democratic party.

"We feel that in the long run the Republicans can do more for the laboring man," declared the former James cabinet official, "and that the new deal has switched the deck on the working man." He explained that he believed labor's gains have been endangered by federal legislation.

barrages and fire from guns of various caliber. Dropping down to a low level over the Axis boats, the Typhoons loosed bombs and numerous rounds of cannon bursts.

Eleventh Consecutive Night

Coastal observers reported that the Allies had come to bring the Axis to its knees by crippling German and Italian war industry was carried into its 11th consecutive night when waves of big bombers made two sweeps in the direction of northern France.

There was no immediate statement by the air ministry on flights of bombers which passed over the Folkestone area toward the continent between 8 and 9 p.m.

Meanwhile, additional reports on the terrific early morning bombardment of Cologne yesterday by the Royal Air Force supported the belief that the raid may prove more devastating than the 1,000-bomber assault of May 31 last year.

A Stockholm dispatch to the Daily Express said that the famous Hohenzollern railway bridge which spans the Rhine was one of the main targets of the assault: One report said that the bridge had collapsed under the impact of two-ton block-buster bombs. Another said the span had been badly damaged and put out of action.

The nearby Hindenburg suspension bridge also was said to have been hit as well as the central post office and the Kaiser Friedrich Quay.

MESSINA AGAIN HEAVILY BOMBED

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden called upon Mussolini to accept the Allied terms of unconditional surrender "in the interest of humanity" and clearly indicated that Rome will be bombed mercilessly when the Allied high command decides upon it.

Churchill also bracketed Japan in his iteration of the doctrine framed by himself and President Roosevelt at Casablanca.

Unconditional Surrender

"We of the United Nations," he said in a speech receiving freedom of the city of London, "demand from the Nazis, Fascist and Japanese tyrannies unconditional surrender."

By unconditional surrender we mean that their will and power to resist must be completely broken and they must yield themselves absolutely to our justice and mercy.

"Unconditional surrender also means we must take all those far-sighted measures which are necessary to prevent the world again being convulsed and blackened by their calculated blows and ferocious aggression."

Referring to the war as "this present fearful struggle for freedom and progress of mankind," Churchill continued:

"We strove too long for peace and suffered thereby. But from the moment we entered the war, we have never looked back. We have never flagged. We have never doubted We have never flinched."

"We were sure of our duty and we have and we will discharge it without slackening to the end. We seek no profit. We want no territory or aggrandizement. We expect no reward, and we will accept no compromise."

To Extend Bombing

The bombing of Germany, Churchill said with ringing solemnity will be extended by the Anglo-American air forces until no industrial or military target throughout the armed services stationed outside continental United States.

One such dollar bill was taken in yesterday by a local bank, where it was stated that such foreign currency is turned in by the banks for recirculation among troops abroad.

These bills, except for the color of the seal, are the same as regular domestic currency and have the same value.

The prime minister had glowing praise for American air and other contributions to the European theatre of war. He stoutly rebuked the British Imperial system against its critics and maintained that continued Anglo-American cooperation now and after the war is essential.

"Otherwise," he said, "modern civilization will be plunged into misery and confusion."

Thus far, Churchill said, Italy has had "only preliminary and disastrous bombardments."

"They already are speculating previously where the blow will fall," he said. "It is not part of our interest to relieve their anxiety. I cannot go further today than to say that very probably there will be heavy fighting in the Mediterranean before the leaves of autumn fall."

The most dangerous softness is the mental kind—the childish self-indulgence that won't stop wasting gasoline.

may terrorize and threaten civilization. Their "will and power to resist must be completely broken," he said.

Every industrial target in Germany ultimately will be visited by its "adequate exterminating force."

Very probably, heavy fighting will rage in the Mediterranean "before the leaves of autumn fall."

The United States, Great Britain and Canada in June turned out between 7 and 10 times more shipping than was lost in enemy action.

Full Scale War On Japs

Promising full-scale British co-operation in the war against Japan, Churchill said:

"I stand here to tell you that every man, every ship and every airplane in the king's service that can be moved to the Pacific will be sent and there maintained in action by the people of the British Commonwealth and Empire in priorities for as many years as needed to make the Japanese in their turn submit or bite the dust."

We should not hesitate to bomb Rome to the best of our ability and as heavily as possible if the course of the war should render such action convenient and helpful."

Asked whether he did not think it advisable to place the responsibility on Mussolini for not proclaiming Rome an open city, he said:

"I think the responsibility is clear enough. Nobody invited him to send his bombers to bomb London."

Under-Secretary of State for Air Capt. Harold Balfour, previously told Commons that the R. A. F. had dropped about 37,500 tons of bombs on Germany in three months ending June 26. This compared with only approximately 12,000 tons loosed on the Reich in the corresponding period of 1942.

The British air raids on Germany were described by Miss Ellen Cecily Wilkinson, joint parliamentary secretary to the Ministry of Home Security, as so terrible that the German civil defense force is stretched to the utmost.

"The position now is that either Germany must hit back at us or confess to the world that the bomber command can make rubble of their vital industries while they are helpless to do more than defend themselves," she said.

Miss Wilkinson announced that a new system of air raid warnings was being brought into use, without revealing any details she said that "it will be a vastly improved system."

REPORT GERMANY ABANDONS PLAN FOR OFFENSIVE

typical of the view of several once-wavering neutral states toward Germany's news position.

After three years of hesitation, Sweden has sent to London an envoy to the Norwegian government-in-exile, tacit acknowledgement of its belief in the restoration of King Haakon's regime. Similarly, the sharp protests to the Wilhelmstrasse over the sinking of two Swedish submarines by Nazi vessels give a fair clue to the current state of the neutral's official mind.

Aside from political reports, however, Germany's plans to go on the defensive are borne out by military information trickling through the guarded borders of the Reich. The Nazis, it was learned recently, now are concentrating on the production of fighter planes to meet Allied invasion moves, just as Britain was forced to do in 1940-41.

In addition, the defense zones of Hitler's "European fortress" and with thousands of coastline miles there was never a greater misnomer—have been stripped of every item that might aid invading armies.

The tenor of Mr. Roosevelt's remarks paralleled recent charges by OWI Chief Elmer Davis that Washington correspondents devoted too much time in writing about government disputes, and too little in adequate coverage of the war news.

The President conceded, however, that the press and radio were not to blame for the current flare-up between Wallace and Jones over policy in making stock-pile purchases of critical raw materials.

Despite two orders issued to end agency "bickering," Mr. Roosevelt admitted to newsmen that Wallace's statements had taken him by surprise, and he indicated no knowledge that the vice president had submitted his charges to War Mobilizer James F. WE ARE PAYING NOW

OCCASIONALLY in reference to the present food shortage which promises to be more serious next winter, we are reminded by critics of the administration that the New Dealers stuck their necks out—or rather the country's collective neck when they paid the farmers year after year for not producing.

Some people have not realized the importance of this fact. They have assumed that the payments for non-production are now something over the hill and the farmers are straining to produce as much as they can. The liquidated pigs are all burned, buried, or forgotten.

As a matter of fact, however, there is an important connection between the former New Deal policy of not producing and the present shortage. Herbert Hoover called attention to the real situation in his comprehensive address on the food situation the other day. His words will bear repeating:

"But underlying all this turmoil there is a fundamental disorder. It may surprise some people to know that in the seven years between the harvests of 1932 and 1939, through governmental restrictions, the acreage in 17 leading crops harvested was reduced by 47,000,000 acres. These 17 crops are about 95 per cent of our whole harvested area."

"When lease-lend was passed in March, 1941, we undertook thereby a vast increased burden of food production. Yet payments to farmers to restrict production were not all removed for the two plantings of 1941 and 1942. By 1942 we had recovered only 9,000,000 of these 47,000,000 lost acres in the 17 leading crops."

Here is part of the story of the effects of restriction of food production in the bygone years. Putting these 47,000,000 acres back into production is not a matter which can be done over night. Aside from the fact farmers were still paid months after Pearl Harbor not to raise certain important crops, the fact that fertilizer, new machinery, and additional labor are needed to put idle acres back into production should not be lost sight of.

With a looming shortage of corn, wheat may be looked on as a good, if expensive substitute for feeding our increased yield of meat animals. But the wheat crop will be shorter this year, too, and wheat is one of the staples which up to now the New Deal professors have been paying farmers to curtail.

CAUTIOUS FLEET PUTS TO SEA

Carefully huddled through the thick of recent Mediterranean action, the main Italian fleet is now reported to have put to sea. It may be that the admirals have decided finally to challenge the British and American forces, to forestall, if possible, occupation of Sicily, Sardinia and the Italian mainland.

The Allies could want nothing better. Their bombers have been seeking the Italian ships in the base at Spezia for weeks and if the latter would come out and fight they would be doing our air and naval forces a favor.

A more likely possibility is that Spezia is getting too hot for the Italian fleet and that it is going to make a run for it to a safer hideout before the Strait of Messina is closed altogether. The remainder of the Italian warships are either at Taranto or in the Adriatic, and there is a good chance that the forces will unite, perhaps for a last-stand defense of the Adriatic.

If they do not get into the contest pretty soon, they might as well call the whole thing off. The Allies rule the main waters of the Mediterranean. If they are unchallenged on the surface in the Adriatic as well, our invasion prospects are greatly enhanced.

THE MAJORITY SEX

Before the current year is out the female of the species in the United States will be more numerous than the male.

Frank R. Wilson, assistant to the secretary of commerce, heralds the change in sex predominance with the observation that we are now passing into the ranks of the "older nations".

Every year following the shift, he notes, "100,000 women, who will hereafter be denied the opportunity to marry, will of necessity assume a larger part in the activities associated with livelihood and thus be of greater importance to business."

There are several other aspects to the case. Males will be popular and will be enabled to choose their life partners with a certain nicety of discrimination, but will be out of luck in politics where they can of course be outvoted by the majority sex, should it ever organize en masse.

However, there is probably no immediate cause for fears that man will be a bitterly oppressed minority since, while he is becoming proportionately rarer, the population reversal is not in high gear yet.

But the question, "Are women people?" will possibly be less frequently heard, since the answer is yes, most of 'em, in this no longer adolescent nation.—Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

NEW ALCOHOL SOURCE

War forced this country to consider alcohol as raw material from which some of its necessities can be made. It is the principal base of the most widely used synthetic rubber process. It is so important that the whole spirituous liquor industry has been converted to the production of industrial alcohol.

Now a new source of alcohol has been developed on this continent. It is forest waste. The Chicago Tribune found that the sulphite liquor which was cast away from its Ontario paper mill as waste would yield alcohol on a paying basis. It constructed a plant with its own funds, and federal experts have inspected it in operation and pronounced it to be a success.

Similar plants could take approximately 85,000,000 gallons of raw alcohol from the waste of all paper mills in this country and Canada, and it is estimated if all waste in the lumber industry—trims, culls, sawdust—were utilized, the output would be 4,000,000,000 gallons a year. This yield, with the potential from farm products, would more than supply the whole demand in this country in any emergency. Its postwar use to compensate for the declining petroleum supply is not overlooked.

The Tribune has rendered a notable service to the economic power of this country. It has also set a good example of the resourcefulness, initiative and courage of free enterprise in a critical hour of the country's life.

The Parent Problem

By GARY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

SUMMERTIME GOOD FOR MUSIC LESSONS

Curiously, we have the child or youth discontinuing instrumental music and the like when summer vacation time comes.

This practice has been prompted, chiefly, by the small number of parents who have had the privilege of leaving home for the summer vacation. But the rank and file of families never have been able to leave home for vacation. Very few will be able to do so for the duration. Most of our children under 14, especially in towns and cities, have so much time on their hands in summer they don't know what to do with it. Some of them, alas, face physical and mental dangers.

MUSIC IS A HELP

Parents who can afford it, and many can, should have their children take instrumental music lessons this summer and practice faithfully each day.

Many children who take music lessons during the school year do it at too great cost to their physical and emotional health. Yet most of these very children could profit greatly from taking music lessons regularly during the summer. They have time to practice them.

While few children under 14 should, during the winter, be required to practice longer than a total of 30 minutes a day, many of them could profitable practice, during the summer, for from 20 to 40 minutes at a time, for two or more practice periods each day.

Not many children would welcome such a program of summer work, but the parents who have in mind the best education and character growth of the child will see that this child gets this instruction. The more skillful the teacher, of course, the easier for such a program to be accomplished.

INSTANT ON PRACTICE PERIOD

Any parent who uses her common sense knows very well that her child will hardly practice faithfully, summer or winter, just for the love of it. This parent will effect a plan by which her boy or girl will be required to practice regularly each day!

To cultivate proper music practice at any time of the year, see to it that your child practices daily at a regular time. Have no arguments about it. Keep your lips sealed and your emotions under control. Tell him just once he will either practice regularly for the time scheduled or immediately sit in a chair where he can be seen doing nothing, and with no amusement whatsoever, for a period four times the length of the regular practice period. Always let him choose but limit the range of choices in this way. Prove that your word is dependable. Years hence your child will warmly praise you for your wisdom, foresight and character.

Inside Washington

See Closer Tie Between Spain And Latin America
Franco Gang Is Disliked But Prince Is Popular
Caudillo Would Like To Have King On The Throne

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Central Press Columnist
WASHINGTON, June 30—Because Latin America is mostly of Spanish descent (Brazil alone is Portuguese), Spain's future is of considerable consequence to the United States. Consequently, Washington takes a decided interest in the discussion relative to management of the Madrid government, particularly in connection with continental European and northern African war developments.

Spain has a royal "pretender" in the person of Prince Juan, third son of former King Alfonso, who was deposed from the throne by the republican revolution in the early 1930's. Juan is an exile now in Switzerland. The peninsula's republicanism was so radical as to verge on anarchism until totalitarianism began to manifest itself in Italy and later, but still more emphatically in Germany.

Inspired by Duce Mussolini's and Fuehrer Hitler's examples, a now well-known Spanish would-be dictator, Generalissimo Francisco Franco, undertook to establish himself in Madrid as his country's Caudillo—Spanish for Fuehrer or Duce, that is.

In comparison with Benito's "Fascists," or "Front-to-Frontiers" or Adolf's "Nazis" or International Socialists, Franco named his outfit "Falangists," or a "Solid Column."

All disinterested spectators (including the Latin Americans) agree that "Caudillo," left to himself against his republicans, would not have lasted long. The republicans were not at all well organized, though, and, with Fascist and Nazi support, Caudillo Franco established himself as top dog in Spain.

If the luck had continued on his side, unquestionably he would continue as a loyal pro-Axisite.

For some time, though, it has been obvious that the Francoist fleet have definitely chilled. Seemingly Franco does not like to quit the Axis outright.

Now can the Spanish monarchy be restored?

The Spanish Duke of Alba, Madrid's ambassador in London, has been inquiring about it. He would not be doing so without Madrid's authority.

Caudillo Franco is scared as to his own job, it is safe betting.

The question is: Could Prince Juan as king and interim-Dictator Franco get together?

Franco needs a king. Prospective King Juan requires a dictator but seems to be cool toward Franco's dictatorship.

As to the present world muss, Royal Pretender Juan insists on being 100 per cent neutral. Caudillo Franco is, at present, perfectly neutral, but is afraid to say so.

Latin America is pretty groggy. It is republican; therefore anti-totalitarian, inclusive of Caudillo Franco.

Yet it is also anti-monarchist, inclusive of Pretender Juan, from back in the dark ages before Simon Bolivar. Yet, how republican is it? It has had its spells of being middling dictatorial.

In short, the country is essentially republican.

Nevertheless it has had its spells of absolutism.

Well, American Spain weighs and it weighs our way.

We may someday again have a king on this side of the South Atlantic.

Not everywhere—but in spots. Juan is a democrat. Also a monarchist.

And he may be helpful. European-style.

Latin America is interested in him. The press down there comments concerning him copiously.

Prince Juan is a king in South America?

No, probably not. Yet the Latin Americans listen to the idea of a coalition of their amalgamated home bunch with some seriousness.

They do not contemplate one country-no.

But there is talk about a union of them, somewhat independently of an affiliation with the United States.

Science already knows how to kill all disease germs. The trick is to do it without killing the patient.

In Britain, Food Problem Handled By Single Agency

Lord Woolton Controls All Price, Distribution Of All Food

ALL RATIONING IS BEGUN AS SURPRISE

(Editor's note: The following article, the second of an authoritative series of four explaining food rationing in Britain, shows how single controlling agency guarantees every man, woman and child a fair and equitable ration deal—INS)

By CHARLES A. SMITH
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, June 30.—Able Lord Woolton is the food king of this nation of 47 millions.

Today, as minister of food, and an eminently successful one at that, he dictates what the nation shall eat, how much it shall eat, and the prices it will pay for it eats.

Through his ministry, he has become the sole purchaser of 95 percent of the country's food imports. He buys or controls the sales and prices of practically everything the British farmer produces. He supervises, in one way or another, nearly every article of food eaten in the country.

Black Market Throttled

Starting with a virtually empty national larder at the outbreak of war in September 1939, he has kept the nation's belly comfortably filled, has managed to build up fair stocks despite losses from air and sea attacks, has ruthlessly suppressed black markets, price rings, and other racketeering activities—all despite the fact that each year since the start of the war has been a year of increasing severity for Britain.

Tea, Soap Surprises

Tea, the national British beverage, provided an admirable example of hush-hush rationing.

The entire nation was dumbfounded when the radio suddenly announced, at 9 p.m. and after all foodshops had closed, that tea would be rationed from that moment.

Distribution By Zones

Because Woolton and his ministry exercise rigid and sole control, distribution and allocation of amounts has been a comparatively simple task. From the ports and the home producing agencies, food is channeled through government-appointed wholesalers to state warehouses and supply and distribution zones.

The entire country is divided into nineteen zones, each of which gets its fair share of meat, fish, vegetables, butter, and other staples.

From zone headquarters food is then channelled out to smaller wholesalers and then to the retailers. The ministry did not set up its own bureaucratic system of wholesalers, but went to the existing big wholesalers and after investigation of their transport, storage capacity, etc., appointed them official state wholesalers.

Reserves Hold Values Up

Against possible shortages of any commodity because of air bombing or sunken convoys, the ministry established zone dumps, built up big stocks of corn beef, canned goods, and other non-perishable foods. Thus, although sometimes some basic ration such as meat has been in short supply, values have always been able to be held by adding, for example, a few cents worth of corn beef to a slightly smaller ration of fresh meat.

The British feel their rationing system is a success because first, it was placed in the hands of a single control, was then broken down to 19 divisional zones each in charge of an official responsible to the ministry of food for his sector; secondly, they believe their system of administration from headquarters, with problems of enforcement and inspection in the hands of divisional inspectors, each responsible to the ministry alone, has been the main reason why rationing here has never snarled, or created widespread black markets.

No Opposition To Flying Forts On Raid On France

Boys Return In High Spirits; One Crew Concluded Operational Missions

By DIXIE TIGHE
(L. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
AN AMERICAN FLYING FORTRESS STATION IN ENGLAND
June 30.—The impossible happened yesterday.

What had been expected to be a flying nightmare turned out to be a winged dream when a bomber group from this station flew over France and came home without encountering a single enemy plane or a single burst of anti-aircraft fire.

True, one enemy fighter struck its nose out of the clouds but disappeared with a speed suggesting evaporation when it sighted 100 Spitfires moving like a magic broom sweeping the sky above and below the heavy bombers.

When the boys returned and entered the interrogation room the scene looked like a picnic gathering that had suddenly been driven indoors. They were whistling and wandering around munching sandwiches and cake. One crew arrived soaking wet—the soaking represented the only action of the day.

"Delta Rebel" Crew Ducked

Capt. George Birdsong, of Clarkdale, Miss., pilot of the fortress named "Delta Rebel," concluded his operational missions on this flight and his ground crew welcomed him home by throwing him in a trough of cold water.

Each member of his crew was generously allowed to share in the ducking.

Birdsong and his men are credited with 32 missions over enemy territory—the highest total in this theater. Every member of the crew holds some decoration, and they were the first to complete five missions, entitling them to the first air medals awarded in the European theater of operations. They have been through every tough raid that has been productive of news.

WAAC Bill Sent To White House

Measure Would Make WAAC Part Of U. S. Army, Raise Enrollment, Age Limit

WASHINGTON, June 30—President Roosevelt today had before him a bill making the WAACs a part of the U. S. Army.

The measure, sent to the White House after congress approved a conference report on it, changes the name of the female soldiers from Womens Army Auxiliary Corps to Womens Army Corps.

The bill also lifts the limit on WAAC enrollment. There are now about 65,000 WAACs and leaders in charge of the legislation said they were advised that the War Department would like to increase this number to 350,000.

The top age limit also is raised from 45 to 50 on the recommendation of WAAC Director Oveta Culp Hobby who said that this action would enable the enrolling of many capable older women.

WAAC officers under the bill are limited to exercising authority over WAACs themselves or to persons specifically placed under their jurisdiction. This was done because women pilots, who will be taken into the WAACs, will at times be in charge of crews consisting of men.

Prentice Brothers Are Army Sullivans

Two Are Air Combat Veterans, Third In Coast Artillery; All From Cleveland

By LEE VAN ATTA

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, June 30—Counterparts of the famous five fighting Sullivans of the Navy are the three fighting Prentices—Maj. George Prentice, former commander of one of the top-notch fighter-plane units of the southwest Pacific; 1st Lieut. Gordon Prentice of the air forces and 2nd Lieut. Robert Prentice of the coast artillery.

George and Gordon already are combat veterans and Robert is expected to take up his combat duties within a few weeks.

The Prentices half from Cleveland Heights, O.—and if one of them is not in the air, it is only because a physical disability prevented him from rounding out an ace team of fighting air force brothers.

The story of George and Gordon is one of the most unique in this war theater. George, now 30, was followed at Brevard Junior College, Asheville, N. C., by Gordon, who is now 24—and both established identical football, track and baseball records.

Gordon was graduated from flying school July 4, 1942, and his first assignment overseas was to his brother's fighter unit in New Guinea.

But with the irony that occurs so often in army life, the same order posting Gordon as a member of the unit transferred George to another command.

However, the pair still managed to get their combat hours together when George was ordered to take a group of newcomers on their first mission—and his brother was among those present.

The reports indicated a further gain for the Chinese since issuance of last night's communiqué which said that the Chinese had broken into the city.

Severe street fighting was said to be in progress in the city with the Chinese troops employing bayonets against the Japanese.

One Plane Of Raider Group
Engages Nazi Pursuers
As Others Escape
By DIXIE TIGHE
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

AN AMERICAN FLYING FORTRESS BASE IN ENGLAND. June 30.—Nazi fighter craft which pursued American Flying Fortresses returning from the latest raid on the U-boat base of St. Nazaire were denied a triumph over the gallant crew of a disabled fort when one of the Yankee craft turned about and gave battle long enough for those aboard the damaged ship to take to their dinghies, officials at this bomber command station revealed Tuesday.

The same Boeing Fortress which enabled the distressed crew to ditch the menacing Nazi planes came upon a second disabled B-17 already down the water and tossed its members an additional life raft.

The fortress which turned back to thwart the Nazi fighters was piloted by Lieut. Richard Weitzel of Chicago who just recently brought his ship home safely from another raid after its stabilizer had been blasted by enemy bombs.

The nine man crew of Weitzel's fort hovered over the crippled companion ship for 35 minutes, fighting a grueling 15-minute battle with two Nazi pursuit craft to give their fellow flyers an opportunity to get away.

Although there was no immediate official word it is believed probable that the crews of the two damaged aircraft later were picked up by patrolling boats customarily sent out at the conclusion of cross-channel raids to pick up downed airmen.

WALLACE CHARGES DENIED BY JONES

Head Of R.F.C. Declares Misstatements Are Made In Charges By Vice President

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, June 30.—Vice Secretary Henry Wallace and Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones on Tuesday clashed in a bitter controversy over America's war material reserves which started even the hardened capital.

Wallace attacked Jones, who also is the directing head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, charging that he seriously obstructed the stock piling of needed and strategic war materials, especially quinine for the fighting forces. The vice president branded Jones an "obstructionist and bureaucrat" and said RFC officials "were still fighting the war with peacetime red tape."

Jones countered with the statement that Wallace's assertions were "filled with malice" and while not passing the lie directly to the nation's second highest official, the angered RFC head said Wallace had made "misstatements."

Wallace's charges were made in a long letter to the senate appropriations committee in defense of Senate attacks on the board of economic warfare, which he heads.

Jones later in the day issued a brief statement stating that "the release given out by Mr. Wallace today is filled with malice and misstatements." He invited a congressional investigation of the allegations made against him by the vice-president and said that he would later "answer the statement in detail."

Jones' brief statement continued: "He makes two serious charges:

"(1) That RFC had failed in the purchase and stockingpile of strategic and critical materials. The facts are that not more than 10 percent of our purchases and commitments for foreign purchases have been approximately $3,500,000,000 of which not more than 10 percent was originated by BEW. We have actually received and paid for materials to the value of $1,600,000,000, of which less than 5 percent can be credited to BEW initiatives."

"(2) The RFC and I have obstructed and delayed programs of development and procurement initiated by BEW. There has been no serious delay by us of any vital programs."

Jones countered with the statement that Wallace's assertions were "filled with malice" and while not passing the lie directly to the nation's second highest official, the angered RFC head said Wallace had made "misstatements."

Wallace's charges were made in a

Woodpulp Control Taken Over By WPB

War Production Board To Allocate Supplies For Manufacture Of All Kinds Of Paper

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, June 30.—The War Production Board on Tuesday assumed complete control over the use of all grades of woodpulp, including pulp for newsprint.

The action became necessary, WPB explained, because the demands of the Army, Navy, lend-lease administration and other government agencies for paper and paper products "have become so inconsistent and the shortages of woodpulp so severe."

Describing the woodpulp situation as "critical," WPB empowered its pulp and paper division to direct the use of any or all woodpulp by manufacturers of paper, paper board and other products.

Under its new powers, WPB forbade deliveries of pulp without its express authority, with only small quantities—shipments of one ton or less of any grade of pulp in a single month—exempted.

The order gave WPB the right to allocate various grades of pulp for the production of paper and other products needed in the war effort and to "restrict or eliminate the use of pulp in the manufacture of less essential papers."

General allocation will be made at the next meeting of the woodpulp allocation committee on July 19, and will become effective in August.

Thus WPB will be able to tell each pulp consumer what types of paper or other products he may manufacture out of his allocated pulp supply.

The order, WPB said, "will insure that sufficient woodpulp is reserved" for the production of essential paper and paperboard products and for the manufacture of certain essential chemical and textile products.

Woodpulp consumers will be required to apply each month to WPB for authorization to use specific quantities of woodpulp during the following month.

New Fiscal Year Begins Thursday

Eleventh Hour Action Is Speeded In Congress On Appropriations

By ELLIOTT HAYES
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, June 30.—A senate bitterly divided over money bills today struggled to complete action before midnight on appropriations of over $76,000,000,000 so that vital government agencies will have funds to begin their new fiscal year.

Unless action is taken today, the upper house must make special provision to meet payrolls and costs temporarily or see thousands go unpaid as many others must now do because of failure to pass an urgent deficiency bill calling for $143,630,591.

The deficiency bill has been hopelessly deadlocked by flat refusal of the senate to agree to a house proviso which prohibits use of the funds to pay salaries of three federal employees accused by the Dies committee of subversive activities.

Although thousands of workers are threatened with the spectre of payless-pay days beginning tomorrow, opponents of the house proviso refuse to yield from their position that the bill means convicting the men without a trial.

Awaits Report

Meanwhile, the senate waited for its appropriations committee to bring in a report on the controversial war agencies bill, and for conference reports on the agriculture, war, interior, department, labor, and federal security bills, making six in all.

A clause permitting the war department to draw upon the treasury or spend funds on hand after midnight was written into the war department bill before it went to the house yesterday. However, there are no emergency provisions yet in the other measures.

The agriculture bill involves some $875,680,709 and differences over oil conservation and the farm security administration are being patched up so that it may pass by tonight. The same is true of the war department bill if it is quickly sent over by the house today.

However, there is no assurance that the war agencies bill containing boosts in the funds which the house voted to the OPA, OWI, the OCD and the Board of Economic Warfare will meet with any approval in the senate even though they have favorable committee recommendations.

Lions Club Ends Year With Reports

Club Presented With Gavel From White House By Lion Edwin C. Wilson

New Castle Lions club ended its year with its luncheon meeting, in the Castleton, Tuesday noon, when reports of the various activities were rendered. Next week, George F. Winter, Jr., who has ably served as president during the past year, will be succeeded by President Arthur Meek, and his corps of officers, elected at the June 8 meeting. The new officers will be inducted at that time.

Lion Edwin C. Wilson presented President Winter with a new gavel, to replace the old one, which became lost. The new gavel is made from wood taken from a beam of the White House, when it was remodeled in 1928, and is seasoned timber, over a century old.

It was reported that 19 members had perfect attendance during the attendance contest, which extended from September 15 to April 23. There were 14 who had perfect attendance throughout the year.

Those having perfect attendance during the contest were awarded handsome Lions pins.

Chairman Charles M. Bashev of the Sight Saving Fund campaign, reported total receipts of $561.50. Total expenditures on sight-saving during the year were $518, and consisted of the purchase of 22 pairs of glasses, two visual treatments, and one operation.

The club reported a membership of 71, a net gain of three over last year, and attendance for the year was 86 per cent.

Registered nurses on duty with the unit are the Misses Beverly Cook, Ida Crelli, Velma Martin, Vera Gallagher, Kathryn Miller, Bernice Modden and Mary Olive Paul. Secretary is Miss Marjorie Leech.

Motor corps members who have been on call throughout the stay of the mobile unit are Mrs. John McIlwraith, chairman, Mrs. Charles Waldo, co-chairman, Mrs. Charles McGill, Mrs. Joseph Green, Mrs. John Mehan, Mrs. DuWayne Shaw, Mrs. Earl Dart and Mrs. Harold Heck.

Red Cross Canteen workers on duty at the center on Tuesday were: Mrs. Thomas Sadler, corps leader; Mrs. Fred Lipp, Mrs. Ralph Wetrich, Mrs. W. F. McClurg, Mrs. William Lestas, Mrs. Harry Culifford, Mrs. William Confer and Mrs. Axel Bergland. Monday canteen workers were: Mrs. D. G. Hildebrand, corps leader; Mrs. Roy Long, Mrs. Paul Butz, Mrs. Jack Conn, Mrs. Morris Davis, Mrs. C. LeRoy Martin, Mrs. H. M. McKee, Jr., Mrs. Bert McKibbin and Mrs. J. A. Porte.

Taking registrations of donors on Tuesday were Mrs. Earl Dart, Mrs. Earl DeWolf, Mrs. Omar Mauck and Mrs. C. M. England.

Consumer registration for liquor rationing had been tentatively set to begin on July 1, according to reports, but the continued indecision of the board over what plan to place in operation made a postponement necessary. Serious consideration had been given to a program under which licensees would receive the same percentage of liquor in relation to the available supply as they purchased last year. Retail buyers would receive equal amounts dependent upon the supply.

It was understood that as many as half-a-dozen different plans were under consideration by the board until a decision is reached on one of them, the date for liquor rationing in Pennsylvania to begin appeared indefinite.

State Police To Enforce Motor Laws

Although there is a ban on pleasure driving, State police propose a Saturday to Monday night vigil of motoring to prevent as many accidents as possible. No doubt travel will be considerably less than one year ago when there was no gas restriction. The State police propose to enforce the speed limit and all other highway motor laws.

2,600 Stirrup Pumps Now Here

Special Tanks With Pumps,
Operated By Hand, Arrive In City

SOME EQUIPMENT FOR BIG PUMPS LACKING

Federal Property Custodian James Gibson today announced the arrival here of more than 2,600 stirrups or hand-operated pumps, for air raid wardens, among which were some for auxiliary firemen with which to help extinguish blazes which may be started by incendiary bombs should this city be raided by Axis bombers. They will be later assigned to various groups, it was

The pumps are of such a size that they can be carried and operated in any section of a house or building.

This adds to the considerable equipment received here although it has been learned that some accessories to equipment already received has not arrived and therefore is not yet in service.

The city OCD sometime ago received nine large pumps to be operated by the auxiliary firemen. Ladders, axes and pike poles were received. However, such accessories as couplings for the hose have not arrived. The only way they may be used would be to borrow such equipment from the city fire department which would be a natural consequence in case a bombing occurred. The OCD has about 4,000 feet of hose here.

There are many helmets. Eleven hundred and twenty gas masks are here. However, none has been issued. Frank Sargent, CARW, says the reason for this is because classes have not completed their course in gas instructions and gas masks. The present supply would not be sufficient to equip all the OCD workers although there might be sufficient to equip those trained in gas work.

The fire department has two resuscitators given to the OCD by the Lawrence county chapter for infant parapysis.

New Methods Of Battling Subs Bring Results

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Submarine warfare is discussed in the following article by Major Paul C. Raborg, noted military analyst and author of "Mechanized Might.")

By MAJOR PAUL C. RABORG
(Written Especially For International News Service)

NEW YORK, June 30.—British high commissioners Malcolm MacDonald of Canada has announced that not less than 14 Axis submarines have been sunk in the last 14 days.

Reports from London have stated that U-boats in the Atlantic have been destroyed at better than one a day for the past two months.

To understand the methods and combination of methods now being used to defeat the Fuehrer's submarine wolf-packs, it is well to review the characteristics of the submarine wolf. Large modern submarines have a cruising range of about 8,000 miles. They have a surface speed of perhaps 18 knots and a submerged speed of about 8 or 9. The average U-boat can carry 12 torpedoes, which have an effective range of from 500 to 5,000 yards.

Favorite Time

The favorite time for torpedo attack is at dusk or early dawn. The submarine thus gains the benefit of half-light in sighting its target and also in concealment of its periscope. Rough weather favors the undersea attack as it becomes much more difficult to spot the periscope.

The United Nations counter-offensive against this deadly menace of under the sea has been thorough and methodical. First, Allied airplanes based in Britain hunt out and bomb factories in Axis Europe where submarines and parts for submarines are produced.

All submarine bases such as Brest, Lorient and St. Nazaire in France

Big Leagues Will Toss Gate Receipts In Funds; Pirates To Battle Phils

Extra Attractions Tossed In To Lure Fans; Yanks At Cleveland

STEPHEN'S REJECTED; CARDS LOSE BROWN

By LAWTON CARVER

(International News Service Sports Editor)
NEW YORK, June 30.—This is one of two days coming up this year when every man, woman and child—and sports writers in the vicinity of the major leagues—should go to a baseball game. You can't beat the bargain offered today—the chance to see a ball game and help the war effort all for the price of one. Sure the sports writers pay today, and so do the umpires and everybody else in the park. The ball players too.

This is the day of the major league's initial big push of the season for the war funds, the day when all receipts go to the fight on the home front, the second such occasion to be on July 28, when the visiting clubs today will stage similar proceedings in their own parks. This is baseball doing it's bit.

Two-Day Layout

Today's major league scramble is a resumption of hostilities after a two-day layoff, while the clubs were shuttling from one spot to the other, the Western National League clubs now being in the east and the Eastern American League clubs in the west.

In most cases all kinds of extra added attractions have been thrown in to pull in the customers. In every park it will be either a double header or a twilight or night program, augmented by band music, track contests among the players, wheelbarrow races, service team clashes and other events to add to the color and pomp of the day—or night, as the case may be.

With a break in the weather all along the line out of this will come some $200,000 for the various war relief funds, with a similar amount expected from the July 28 contest and still more money for the same cause to be raised by the All-Star game July 13.

As the St. Louis Cardinals open in the east to protect a half game lead over the Brooklyn Dodgers and the New York Yankees make a stand in the west leading the Washington Senators by 1½ games.

Glad-Sad Tidings

Speaking about baseball and the war, St. Louis got a mixture of glad and sad tidings yesterday from a baseball standpoint. Vernon Stevens, slugging shortstop, was rejected by his draft board to give the Browns a new lift, just after First Baseman George McQuinn had been turned down.

The Cardinals, however, lost Jimmie Brown, flashy infielder and captain.

Brown was expected to go and the infield has been plugged up to fill the void. However, he will spend a few weeks furlough with the club before departing in answer to his Uncle Sam's call.

Stephen presumably was rejected because of a knee injury, while McQuinn's trouble is an old back malady. With these two slated to stick around for the rest of the season the Browns may yet get going and arrive up there on or near the top as everybody has expected them to do.

Aside from all that, this is baseball's first big day for the season—the day when the game kicks in.

ANOTHER TRY

Lee Handley, who is the baseball property of the Giants, is making another try with Toronto. His throwing arm is crippled from an auto accident.

ever, knotted the fray in the bottom half of the opening inning and added four more in the third to chase the Moose out of first place.

Manager Rodenbaugh stepped to the knoll for the first time this season and was a popular figure so far as the winners were concerned.

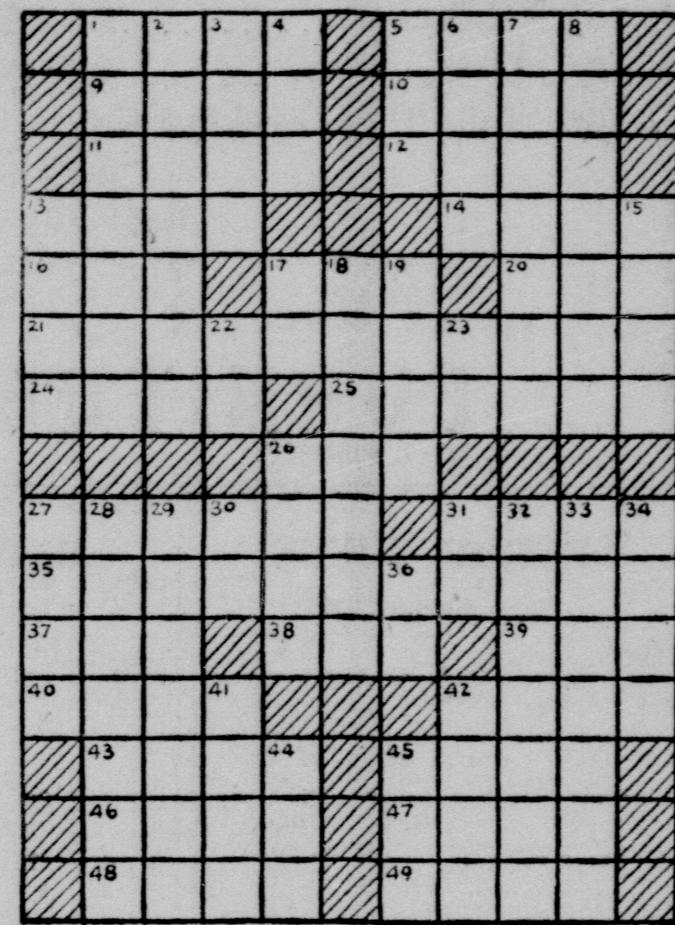

Nelson, Annarella, and Grist slashed doubles while Logue rifled a triple for the winners. Raymond and McCullough counted three hits apiece. Knight featured for the Moose with two safe blows.

The Elders rang up their fifth triumph to bring the Gunnemets up to the .500 mark. The Moose corps won 7 and lost 4 mark and trails the Indies by a half game.

Haegg Denies Name Used In Advertising

(International News Service)

HANOVER, N. H., June 30.—Gundar Haegg, Swedish track star, today denied any knowledge that his name and picture were being used in connection with advertising bread, clothes and wrist watches in Sweden.

Haegg, who leaves for Chicago to meet Gil Dodds in the two-milers after two days more of training, remarked on Stockholm stories referring to the advertising. "There is nothing to it. If my picture is being used, it is not with any authority from me."

Official connections with commercial advertising would endanger Haegg's amateur status.

Axial Now Sees July 3 As Date For Invasion

By CAPT. JOHN H. CRAIGE
Written Especially for International News Service

Latest invasion date set by Axis commentators for the appearance of an amphibious United Nations army on the coast of Europe, according to Nazi broadcasts, caught by neutral European recorders, appears to be this coming Saturday, July 3. Although the connection is not stated, the obvious inference is that such a landing would be timed to coincide with America's great Independence Day celebration of July 4th.

No comment is made in the matter by Washington or London, and the Axis guess, like others that have preceded it, is probably far wide of the mark. But the fact that the statement and so many others to similar effect have been made is an eloquent commentary on the seething mental state of the populations inside Hitler's fortress Europe while allied forces move every day closer and tension mounts during the wait for the stroke of multiple invasions that all know must come.

For six and a half weeks now, since the completion of the conquest of Tunisia, dispatches, reports and Axis radio broadcasts, caught by allied and neutral recorders have reflected an increasingly strange picture of a continent besieged and waiting uneasily for the storm of attack to burst.

New Procurement Officer Appeals For More WAVES

Captain Patterson, Director For Fourth Naval District, Tells Of Need

(Special To The News)
PHILADELPHIA, June 30.—One of the navy's greatest personnel needs today is WAVES—and more WAVES.

That comes from a regular navy captain with nearly 16 years of sea experience in battleships, cruisers, destroyers and submarines. And it comes without hesitation or reservation.

Captain Theodore Thomas Patterson, U.S.N., 50, a native of Camden, N.J., made the statement upon relieving Captain E. R. McClung, U.S.N., as director of naval officer procurement for the Fourth Naval District—Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey and Delaware.

"The Women's Reserves are doing a remarkable job, one of the finest in the war effort," Captain Patterson said. "The navy's feelings on the subject are best expressed by an old chief petty officer who served under me, a man who harked back beyond the motor boat age to rowing craft. He said: 'They pull their weight in any boat.' From an old-timer, that is the finest of compliments."

Captain Patterson, a naval academy graduate of the class of 1916, himself paid tribute to the fighting stamina and quickly-acquired naval skill of the naval reserve.

"The naval reserve is the navy today," he remarked. "The regular navy is just a drop in the bucket of seagoing manpower. Ships are being manned and fought mostly by naval reserves and they are doing exceedingly well. They need to be told only once. I think they learn much faster today than during the World War."

New Point Values On Meat July 4

PITTSBURGH, June 30.—Another increase in the point values of beef and "slight raises" in point values of a variety of items on both blue and red ration stamps will be put into effect July 4, the Office of Price Administration revealed yesterday. Revised point and price listings on meats, fats, fish, cheese and processed foods will be announced in advance next Friday.

Community price lists will be substantially unchanged, according to the OPA, but point values will change on all beef cuts, four veal and lamb and two pork items, on canned fish and perhaps a dozen processed foods. Point value raises will affect lard, margarine, cheese, small size tomato and vegetable juice cans and all size of tomato sauces, it was indicated.

HAS PERFECT ALIBI FOR PARKING TICKET
(International News Service)

SAN FRANCISCO, June 30.—Asked by Municipal Judge Herbert Kaufman to explain why his car was found parked on a "prohibited for parking" street, T. W. Voss had a good enough explanation today. "I own the street," he calmly informed the startled court.

Hasty consultation with city officials revealed that Voss actually did own the street—a 200-foot stretch—and that he had tried to give it to the city but the city had refused it.

P. S.: Judge Kaufman cancelled the parking ticket.

Two Runaway Soldiers Facing Chicago Charges

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, June 30.—Two runaway soldiers, who federal officials said escaped with five others from the Army Air Corps guard house at Atlantic City, N.J., May 16, and kidnapped and robbed a clergyman were to appear today before U. S. Commissioner Edwin K. Walker in a removal hearing.

Spencer Drayton, head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Chicago, and said the men, Harry L. Delettrez, 20, and Joseph Smedeker, 22, confessed the kidnapping and robbery, which Drayton said netted them $314. They recently were arrested as burglary suspects in Freeport, Ill.

They drove the preacher, whom Drayton did not identify, to Reading, Pa., where he was released after being bound and gagged. Drayton said both men had previous police records.

Fourth This Year Will Be Different

Fourth of July 1943 will not be celebrated by some as one year ago because of the pleasure driving ban.

There was a time when some organizations held picnics and other groups travelled to places along streams for picnics.

The ban against driving will stop most of these.

So far there has been no let down of the no-pleasure driving any one caught by the OPA is apt to lose his ration book.

FREAK LIGHTNING BOLT FIRES RYDER HOME NEAR VOLANT

(Special To The News)

MERCER, June 30—Both fire companies were called out at 4:30 p.m. Monday when a freak twist of lightning caused a $150 fire in the home of Frank Ryder, R. D. 1, Valiant.

The lightning, which struck the chimney and knocked it apart, streaked through the kitchen and ignited a box of matches on the kitchen stove. The flames were under control by the time the firemen arrived.

Mrs. Ryder, who was sitting near the chimney, narrowly escaped serious injury when a brick flew over her head. The only "casualty" was a blanket of soot which entirely covered her.
